Introduction

- GoU has several laws & policies aimed at empowering women to effectively participate in the political, economic & social spheres of life.
- Nonetheless, gender inequality remains a huge development challenge for Uganda.
 - E.g. female unemployment rate (13.1%) is more than double that of their male counterparts (5.8%).
- To promote peace, a country's growth must be inclusive and sustainable (Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe [OSCE]).
- Adequate public allocations for gender and equity interventions is a sure way of ensuring inclusivity.
- This presentation examines domestic and donor spending on interventions intended to promote GEWE in Uganda.

In absolute amounts , budget allocations to GEWE interventions have increased remarkably – by >34% between FY 2017/18 & 2018/19

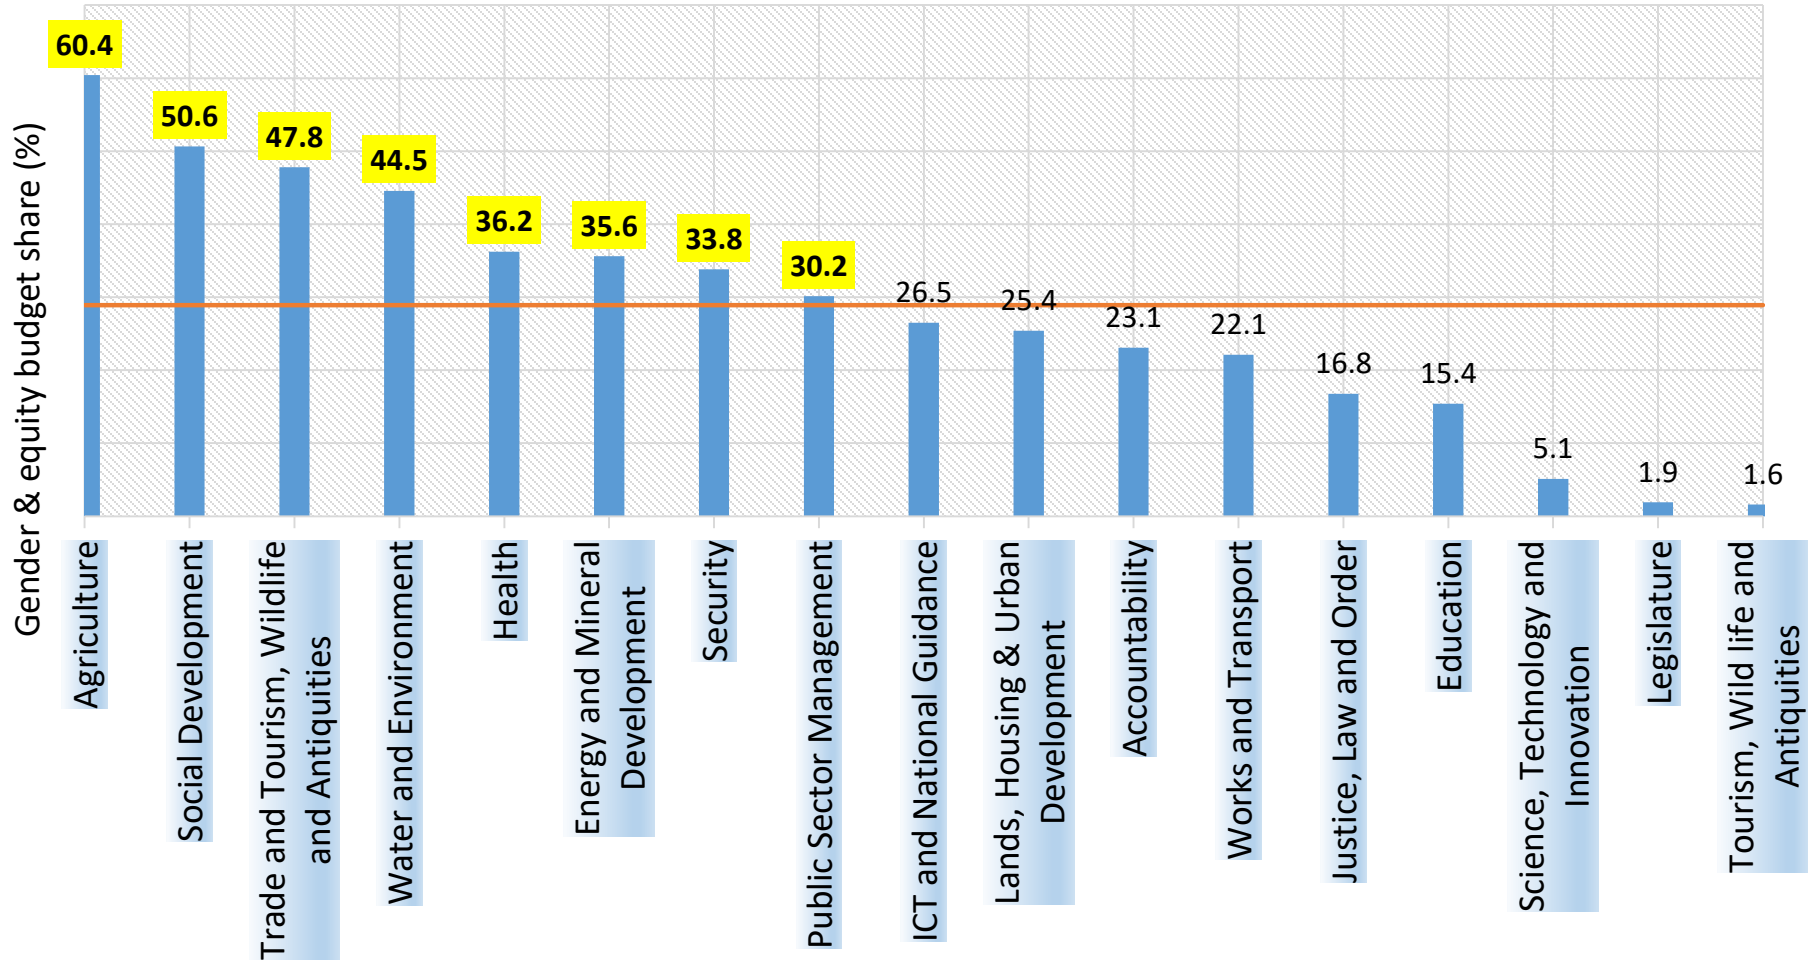

National budget allocation to GEWE interventions increased by about three percentage points from 26.0% in FY 2017/18 to 28.9% in FY 2018/19.

The increased budget allocations to gender-focused interventions are not uniform across sectors.

Share of sectoral allocations to GEWE interventions partly reflects the weight attached to GEWE; Some sectors surpass the national average of 28.9%

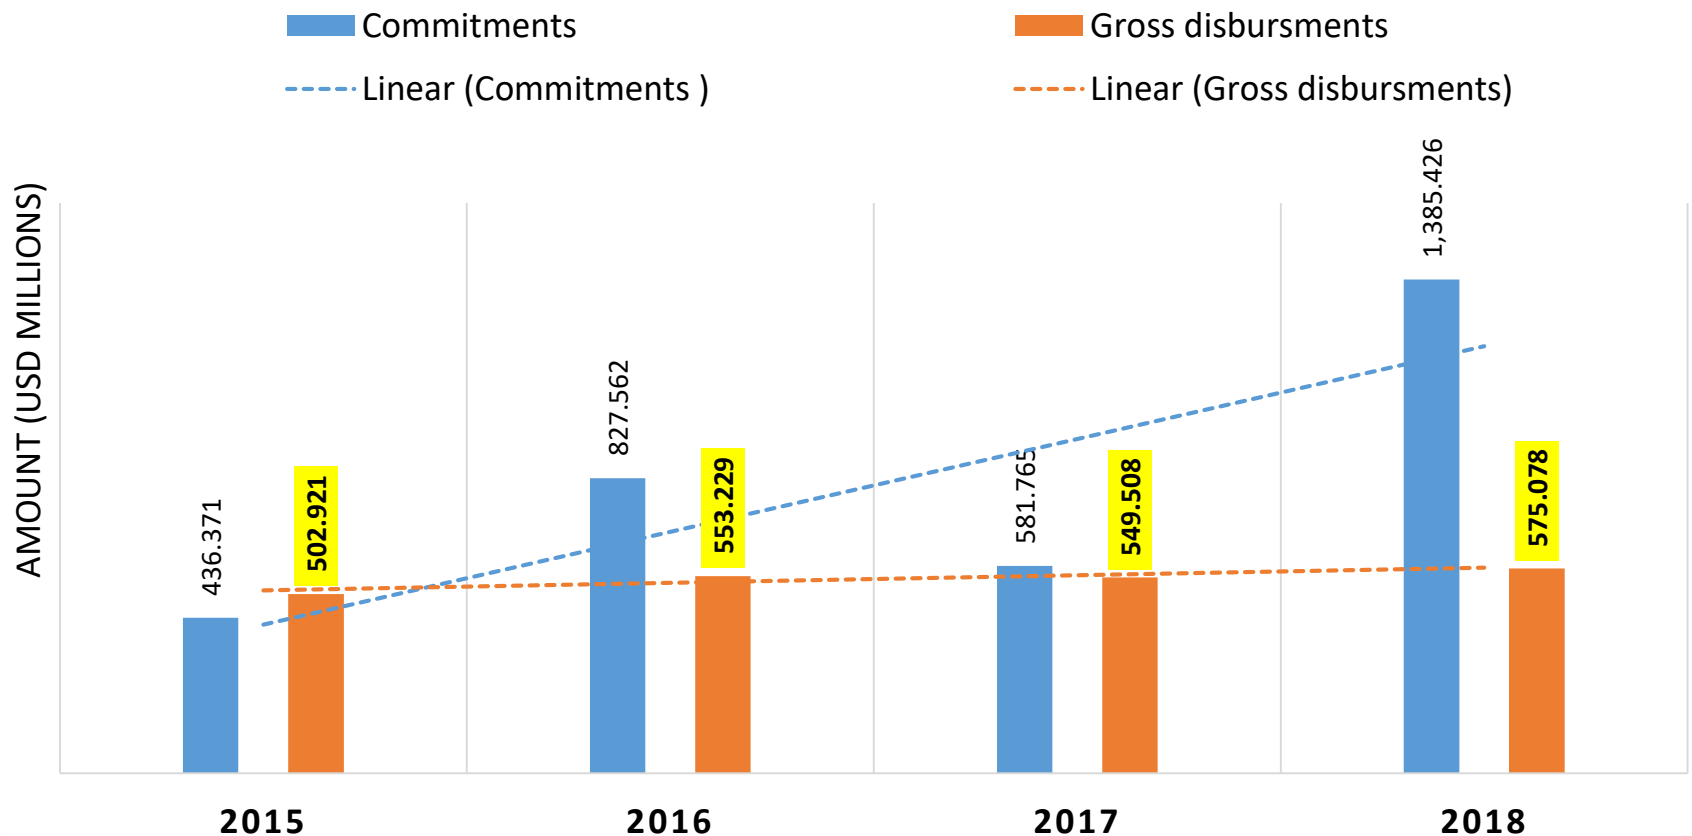

There are minimal variations between budget allocations & released funds, suggesting that GEWE interventions are minimally affected by budgets and reallocations.

Since the adoption of SDGs in 2015, Uganda has increasingly received aid for projects targeting GEWE; however, effective donor commitment remains uncertain

Government of Uganda to a significant extent depends on its own resources to finance gender equality and women's empowerment projects/programmes

Emerging Issues for policy consideration

1

- GoU needs to continue relying less on donor funding for GEWE activities given the observed inconsistencies in commitments & disbursements.

2

- MoFPED together with URA should expedite strategies for increasing domestic resource mobilisation such that sectoral & GEWE allocations can sustainably be increased annually.

3

- GoU should establish a standard proportion of sector allocations that should be earmarked for gender equality and women's empowerment.
